History of Present Illness:

I saw MICHAEL KEDROWSKI in the office today for an initial consultation. He is a 63 year old man with the complaint of chronic low back pain involving the lateral aspect of his left leg from the hip to the ankle for the past 5 months. He has intermittent numbness and tingling of the leg but denies any weakness or any bowel or bladder incontinence. He has no best position and therefore has pain with sitting, standing, walking, and lying down. The left leg bothers him more than his lower back.

He has not gone to physical therapy but did see a chiropractor with transient relief. He has not had injections done and takes ibuprofen.

He takes ibuprofen 400 mg when necessary.

He has not had an MRI of the lumbar spine.
